Major retail envisioned at former casino site

By Steve Marschke
News-Ledger Editor

A commercial real estate developer is considering the construction of what would be West Sacramento's largest retail development, near the corner of Reed Avenue and I-80 in the city's northwest.

The developer's interest came quickly on the heels of a failed proposal to place an Indian gaming casino on the same land – a proposal that fizzled out after a February ruling against the Upper Lake Pomo Band of Indians on Feb. 24. And the new proposal follows past attempts to see the land developed as an auto mall, as an alternative site for Sacramento's current Truxel Road retail center, and as a "factory outlet" mall.

Dan Ramos, a project manager for the 65-acre site owned by a partnership involving his father, Frank Ramos, and Marvin "Buzz" Oates, said that Cousins Properties has purchased an option to buy the Riverpoint land.

They are now seeking retailers to lease the property, he added, giving some idea of the kinds of stores being sought.

"They're putting together tenants," said Ramos. "They're talking to retailers like Costco, Ikea, Target, Lowes – retailers of that type. They're talking about putting together a 'lifestyle center.' "

The center, if successful, would host several large retail anchors plus a number of smaller establishments.

One unusual potential tenant is "Outdoor World," owned by Bass Pro Shops. Known in some parts of the country as a kind of "Disneyland for adults," the retailer includes both display space and sports activity space. The retailer includes features such as an aquarium stocked with game fish and a place to practicing casting a fishing line as well as a place to buy a pole or a boat. But Ramos said "Outdoor World" may prove tough to hook in West Sacramento because of its aggressive negotiating style.

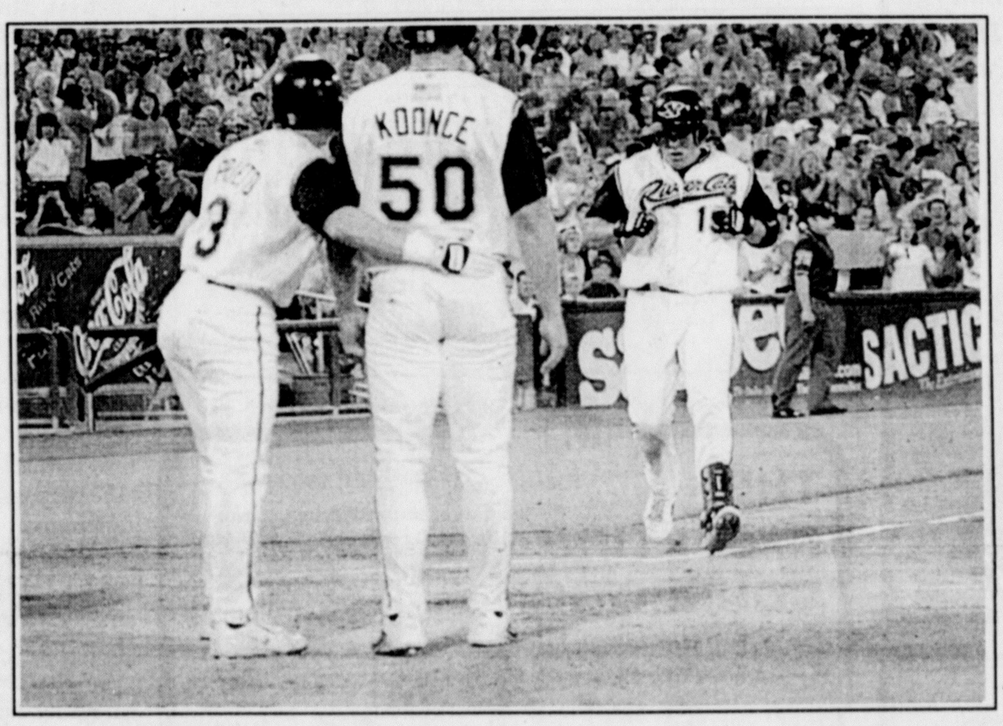
"They're very tough to get because they want so much," said Ramos.

West Sacramento mayor Christopher Cabaldon – an opponent of the landowner's last plans, which involved putting a casino on the site – said the retail proposal looks promising.

"Retail development is our number-one economic priority in this city," said Cabaldon. "It's certainly a welcome development."

Spokespeople from Cousins Properties, a multi-state builder and operator of commercial space, were not immediately available for comment.

Trappers trapped, sent home



West Sacramento's home team -- the Sacramento River Cats, who play locally on Raley Field -- swept the Edmonton Trappers last week three games to none, earning the right to advance to the Pacific Coast League championships.
The River Cats are a 'Triple-A' club, serving as the 'farm team' for the Oakland A's major league franchise.

Port plan challenged, PepsiCo plant uncommitted

By Steve Marschke
News-Ledger Editor

A plan to build a soft drink bottling plant on the Port of Sacramento's Southport property appears less likely than it did earlier this summer.

The Port of Sacramento earlier announced that a major bottling company – eventually identified as PepsiCo, Inc. – was pursuing the purchase of some of the port's acreage in what the port calls its "Seaway" property. PepsiCo planned to use the site to bottle Gatorade and another unnamed soft drink.

Shortly afterwards, port officials announced that the bottler had delayed, but not canceled, these plans, to allow for an examination of corporate strategy.

Now, the company has shied away both from buying the land and from buying an "option to purchase" the land, said Port of Sacramento director John Sulpizio.

"In the first instance, they wanted to buy the property and start construction in the fall," said Sulpizio. "Then they announced a delay of six or seven months to straighten out some corporate priorities. At that point, we tried to arrange an 'option to purchase.' "

In effect, PepsiCo was asked to buy the right to buy the land, at some point in a future for a certain price.

With the funds from selling that purchase option, said Sulpizio, the port planned to continue processing its city application for a Seaway plan designed to include the bottler. But after winning approval of this plan from the city planning commission in July, the port faced a challenge. An attorney representing several West Sacramento residents challenged the Seaway plan by "appealing" the matter to the city council.

The protest was based on potential traffic, air and noise concerns generated by the Seaway plan.

In the face of that challenge, which was scheduled to be heard out at tonight's city council meeting, the port has decided to drop the city application. It will continue to court the bottling plant, though, said Sulpizio.

"(Pepsico) has declined an option to purchase, and we are now in the process of trying to negotiate with them a 'first right of refusal,' which is much less expensive to them," said Sulpizio.

Instead of buying the right to purchase the land, PepsiCo would merely be paying for the right to be notified and given a chance to negotiate before the port sells the land to someone else.

The challenge to the planning commission approval came from attorney William Kopper of Davis, who declined to name his clients for the News-Ledger.

"The clients were neighbors who lived in the area," said Kopper. "I don't know if they want me to reveal their names."

He said that these clients were concerned about the project's environmental impacts.

Sulpizio said Kopper's clients may well have had another agenda – holding PepsiCo's plans hostage unless it agreed to use union labor to build the bottling plant. The company was planning to "low bid" the construction project, which would presumably make it a non-union project.

"It was rumored that William Kopper was really representing certain labor interests that were trying to force a union contract, which was frankly obnoxious to PepsiCo," said Sulpizio. "Oftentimes these environmental complaints have nothing to do with the environment at all."

In other port news:

■ The port on Monday decided to perform additional environmental study on the effects of a planned cement-handling facility in the port's terminal area. The West Sacramento Quality Urbanization and Development community group, led by attorney and resident Kimber Goddard, had sued the port over the sufficiency of its early environmental certification for the project.

■ Director Sulpizio said yesterday that prospects for shipping at the struggling inland port may soon look a bit better.

"We've come out of a seasonal slow period and I'm anticipating entering a better season," Sulpizio stated. He cited chances for gains in the shipment of rice and lumber.

"The news is good with respect to some boost in cargoes."

Failed robbery: suspect wounded?

By Steve Marschke
News-Ledger Editor

One robbery suspect may have been shot with a robber's own gun in an incident at a West Capitol Avenue motel early the morning of September 3. But the would-be robbery victim, who thwarted the attempt to steal money wasn't hurt, said Detective Amy Weirich of the West Sacramento Police Department.

The event took place around 5:50 a.m. last Wednesday morning at the Bel Air Motel, 1600 West Capitol.

"Some individuals had shown up in what was a possible attempted robbery, and one or more of the suspects was armed," said Weirich, who was one of the officers to respond to the call. "Shots were fired, but the only person who may have been shot was one of the suspects."

Two potential suspects were identified. One, 23-year old Jerome Taylor, known to frequent West Sacramento as well as Sacramento's downtown area, was arrested Thursday.

"We had passed out information to Sacramento Police Department's bicycle patrol units in the downtown area because that's an area he's been known to frequent," said Weirich. "They saw him and arrested him."

Taylor has been charged with attempted murder, attempted robbery, assault with a deadly weapon and conspiracy, she added. Taylor was not injured in the robbery incident.

In connection with the robbery attempt, police are also seeking Toshika Brown, a 23-year old African American woman who is 5'6" tall and weighs 160 lbs., and has black hair and brown eyes. A third unidentified suspect – possibly a female – is also sought.

Missing girl found; two charged with molestation

A 13-year old girl missing from West Sacramento was found in the custody of a 19-year old man in Sacramento's Auburn Blvd. area. A Sacramento sheriff's deputy spotted the pair walking along holding hands, and detained them at about 1:45 p.m. on Monday, said a press release from Lt. Dave Farmer, West Sacramento Police Department.

The girl said she had left home with the 19-year old suspect of her own free will.

That suspect and the girl's stepfather were both charged with separate incidents of child molestation in connection with the female victim, said Detective Amy Weirich of the West Sacramento Police Department.

Correction

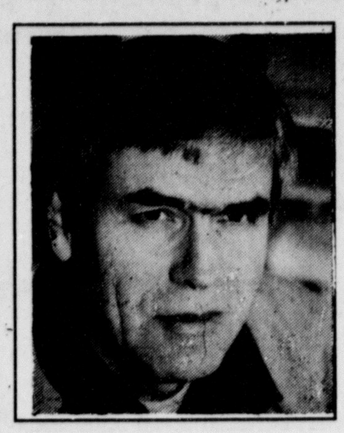
Two weeks ago, the News-Ledger misidentified the proposed location for a set of storage tanks of petroleum products.

These tanks are being discussed by Wickland Oil and by the Port of Sacramento not for the port's Southport acreage, but for other port property along Industrial Blvd. and just west of Harbor Blvd.

The News-Ledger regrets the mistake.

Hardest part of war? Getting everyone to show up

My Back Pages



By Daryl Fisher

Shortly after President Bush made his speech to the nation last Sunday night about the country's need to stay the course in war-torn Iraq, I received a phone call from one of my more politically liberal friends wanting to know what I had thought of it.

"Actually," I said reluctantly, "I'm afraid I didn't see it."

"You've got to be kidding," exclaimed my friend.

"Sorry," I said, "but I was busy outside in my backyard planting some new trees and flowers. They really look great by the way."

Sensing that my friend didn't think very highly of my excuse for not watching a major televised presidential address to the nation about the war in Iraq, I quickly asked him to bring me up to date on what I had missed. He told me that the president will be asking Congress for an additional $87 billion to fight terrorism in Iraq and Afghanistan, that he has changed his mind and now wants the United Nations to assume a much greater role, that he believes Iraq is now the central front in the war against terror, and that we're going to keep at least 130,000 United States soldiers there for the foreseeable future and also ask for more foreign troops to help with all the fighting and policing.

"None of that really sounds particularly new to me," I said.

"But the man wants $87 billion more dollars to fight that stupid war," said my friend. "Do you know what we could do with that kind of money here in the United States? Do you know how many new schools we could build? Or how many states and counties wouldn't be going broke if we could pass along some of it to them? Or how many new jobs we would create if we just put it into fixing up this country's decaying infrastructure?"

Admitting that I didn't have a clue, my friend went on to energetically point out some of the other following things he thought I should be aware of concerning President Bush and the current political administration in Washington D.C.:

They have spent the entire United States surplus and given us the biggest annual deficit in history; over two million Americans lost their jobs during the first two years of the administration; the president has had the fewest press conferences of any president since the creation of television; they have dissolved more international treaties than any administration in history and have tried to make the United Nations irrelevant; they don't care a lick about the environment; and worst of all, they have now made the worst foreign policy decision (the war in Iraq) since Napoleon invaded Russia.

"Actually," I reminded my friend, "if you remember correctly, just about every elected politician in both the House of Representatives and the United States Senate also voted to support the war in Iraq."

"But they had no other choice," he said. "They didn't want to look like a bunch of whimps by not supporting the president."

"That may be," I said, "but I don't think it's fair to just blame the president and some of the idiots he has surrounded himself with now that a once very popular war is suddenly starting to go south."

"But I thought you were dead against this crazy war?"

"I am," I said, "and I have been from the very beginning, but you gotta give President Bush credit when credit is due."

"Credit for what?" my friend demanded to know.

"Well," I tried to explain, "do you remember what Woody Allen once said about war?"

"No."

"He said that ninety percent of war-making is just getting everyone to show up. And you have to admit that President Bush and his advisors did a really great job of getting the whole country fired up and ready to go."

"But all that stuff they told us about weapons of mass destruction, and how the Iraqis would welcome us with open arms, and how Saddam Hussein and Iraq were tied to al-Qaeda and therefore an imminent threat to the United States, all that stuff was garbage."

"Maybe so," I admitted, "but that is no longer the question."

"Then what is the question?"

"I'm afraid the question will soon be the very same one we faced in Vietnam -- how do we proclaim victory and then get the hell out of there."

Art by Sokolich featured at local exhibit

By Betty Fairbairn Sokolich

The local library has been, for a great number of years, the sole public area to display the creative art of local area artists. Starting in the 1960s, the East Yolo Friends of the Library has sponsored the exhibits. At that time the library was in a store across from the present Arthur Turner Library on Merkley Avenue.

In 1976, when the new West Sacramento library opened, the Friends continued to sponsor the exhibits. I was given the honor of having a retrospective exhibit for the first display in the new library as a thank you for having been the exhibit chairperson since the beginning of the art shows.

Hanging the art work in the new library was a real challenge. Nails could not be hammered into the new walls to hang the paintings so a hook was inserted into the ceiling molding, and an attached wire came down to the desired height for the painting. Then balancing the painting to hang straight was quite a challenge. Later the Friends were able to have the walls covered with "executive board" and hanging the work became so much easier. Joe Sokolich has become very professional at hanging the shows.

This month is again an opportunity to display my water colors created in the last few months. The show runs through September with the public invited to attend the reception on September 20th from 2-4 p.m. I am always fascinated by the many facets of nature, the great variety of shapes, textures, colors, light, and shadow found in the ocean, plains, valleys, forests, and mountains. The challenge is to create a pictorial composition that will convey some of my excitement of the environment we live in. There is a natural rhythm of nature.

A few of the paintings you will see are "Lassen Country", which depicts the vastness and breadth of the foothills, mountains, and lakes; "Yuletide", which portrays the beautiful Poinsettia of Christmas time; and "A Change of Pace", which is more abstract and depicts the optimism I was feeling at the time.

See you at the reception.

Strange BUT TRUE

By Samantha Weaver

• Some scientistd believe that kissing evolved as a way for people to smell and taste others' faces in order to gauge what kind of mood they were in.

• It was John F. Kennedy who observed, "Mothers all want their sons to grow up to be president, but they don't want them to become politicians in the process."

• Originally, wedding cake was thrown at the bride and groom rather than being eaten by them.

• Several very early cultures used to enjoy chocolate as a beverage. The Mayans enjoyed it so much that when they died, they were buried with the cups or bowls they used for drinking chocolate while they were alive.

• In the Apache language, "kemo sabe" means "white shirt."

• More actual song titles from days gone by: "Get Your Biscuits in the Oven and Your Buns in the Bed"; "If My Nose Were Full of Nickels, I'd Blow It All on You"; "Jesus Loves Me (But He Hates You)"; and "Where Did Robinson Crusoe Go with Friday on a Saturday Night?"

• If you're like most people, as a child your mother told you that money is filthy and never to put it in or near your mouth. Well, she was right; a study published in the magazine Infections in Medicine found that 11 percent of bills and 3 percent of coins have bacteria growing on them. The Japanese, though, have come up with a way to handle the problem. At some ATMs in Japan, you can get your money laundered — legally. The machine will press the cash between rollers at very high temperatures, which will kill most bacteria.

The rest of the story...

Debra asks:

I am buying a home and we are a week away from closing and moving in. My loan officer called me and told me the lender is out of business and they will be unable to fund the loan. Why, and what can be done?

A local lender suddenly and surprisingly went out of business, leaving you wondering what to do. You are not alone. If you had a loan in process at that lender you will not get the purchase, refinance or cash you were looking for.

However, the other lenders in town have offered to assist in the recovery of those who had loans over there. But there will be a delay in your purchase, refinance or cash-out refinance, and you may not get the rate you were promised.

Why did this happen? It's easy to blame that lender, but it's basically the fault of the interest rates rising so fast in a small amount of time. There were too many loans on the books, and not enough cash to cover them. Were there management issues? Maybe. We will find out exactly what happened in the following months.

Knowing the owners of the company, I can tell you that they have the utmost integrity. But the facts are obvious: nobody got the loans they were promised!

Where to go from here? For people on the last leg of their escrow, I can assure you that your loan has been delivered to another lender and they are working diligently on getting it closed for you. For those refinancing, there are some different issues. The rate that was promised you a month ago is not remotely close to being available. Many brokers are trying to salvage these transactions by going into their pockets and trying to make the transactions work, but they can only dig so deep before it becomes unrealistic. Many lenders are trying to move you into another loan product. For those loans that did record, you are safe and your loan has probably already been sold. The bottom line is that many people lost rates, maybe their home purchase, and even their cash out. All that can be said is to be patient in this time.Just don't go out and buy anything on credit before your loan is funded. This could delay the process.

If you would like to discuss you specific issue or have concerns, please don't hesitate to call me anytime. I look forward to your call.

Major League Baseball

The Giants (86-55) magic number is 11 as they head down south to play a three game series against the San Diego Padres. The Giants still hold a commanding 11 game lead over the second place Dodgers with 19 ball games remaining in the regular season. The G-men and Dodgers will play each other seven more times including a season ending three game series at Pac Bell Park.

The Giants trail the Atlanta Braves by 4 ½ games for the overall best record and home field advantage for the playoffs. The Giants will return on the weekend to play a three game series against the Brewers and then starting on Monday finish their home stand with a four game series against the Padres.

The Oakland A's (84-60) are still 1 ½ games ahead of Seattle in the battle for the Western Division title. These two teams meet six more times before the seasons end. The A's are trying to find another starter to fill in for the injured Mulder.

The A's, who are trying to find another starter to fill in for the injured Mulder, called up the River Cats best pitcher, Justin Duchscherer. The Young River Gatos will pitch on Tuesday night against the Angels in Oakland. Duchscherer promotion will make him available to pitch in the up coming PCL Championships. Duchscherer, the PCL Pitcher of the Year, won 14 games this season and only had two losses to his credit while posting a 3.25 ERA.

The River Cats, who swept Edmonton in their best of five series, will open up the PCL Championship series in Nashville on Tuesday night. The best of five series will move to Raley Field on Friday (7p.m.) night. Tickets are still available by calling (916) 371-HITS or by visiting the Raley Field box office.

NFL Action

The San Francisco 49ers (1-0) declawed the Chicago Bears 49-7 last Sunday before a sun drenched crowd of 68,809 at Candlestick Park. It was hard to tell if the Niners were that good or if the Bears were that bad! I think it was a little of both. The 49ers used a balance offense and a stubborn blitz happy defense to frustrate the young Cubs.

So far it seems the 49ers addressed their special teams weakness from last season. The Niners actually blocked a punt and caused a fumble that was recovered on the five-yard line. Also the place kicker, Chandler chipped in five field goals in 49ers rout of the "Da Bears". The 49ers (-3) will travel to St. Louis next Sunday (10 a.m.) to face the Rams and Mark Bulger, who will take over at QB for the beat up Kurt Warner.

The Raiders (0-1) on the other hand had a horrible game in their 25-20 loss to Tennessee that produced 17 penalties and very poor special teams play. The infractions added up to 173 yards! Who says that preseason doesn't count. Raiders offensive tackle, Barry Sims, played like he was still in the preseason mode.

Charlie Garner picked up were he left off last season providing the Raiders with most of their offensive punch. Quarterback, Rich Gannon, passed for 264 yards but most of his passes were short drop offs to Garner, Rice and Brown. Gannon is becoming very predictable and must open up his passing game by throwing deeper down field to Rice and Brown.

The Raiders (-12) home opener against Cincinnati on Sunday (1:15 p.m.) is still not sold out! Will there be another Silver and Blackout on Sunday?

Week No.2 in the NFL is going to be a little tougher after going .500 (2-2) in the first week of the NFL season. I won with the Niners and N.Y. Giants but the Bucs crushed the Eagles on Monday night and the Texan's, in the upset of the week fried the Fish. Houston, who was a two-touchdown underdog, stopped Miami's running game and forced the Fish to beat them with their weak passing game. The result was a 21-20 last second field goal victory by Houston and further proof that any team can win on a given Sunday! There is no lock in professional sports.

In week two the Raiders (-12) will whip and knock the stripes off the Bengals and I also expect Brett Farve and Packers (-6 ½) to tame the Lions in Green Bay while the defending Super Bowl Champion Bucs (-9) cage the Panthers and their newly promoted inexperienced quarterback. On Monday night I'll take the Giants (-7 ½) to corral the Cowboys in New York.

Boxing News

West Sacramento's No. 1 lightweight, Juan Lazcano (32-2-1, 24KO's), is set for his WBC 12-round title elimination bout against No. 2 contender, Steve Johnson (35-2-1, 17KO's). Both fighters will pull in $75K with the winner promised a shot at Floyd Mayweather's WBC title and a huge payday! Lazcano is in the best shape of his life and will beat Johnson in stunning 4th round knockout.

The Lazcano bout will be the first of three outstanding 12 round fights on Bob Arum's Pay-Per-View extravaganza at the MGM in Las Vegas featuring the unification of the WBC and WBA Junior Middleweight titles between the Golden Boy " Oscar De La Hoya and Shane Mosley. I like the Golden Boy to stop Mosley in a seventh round TKO.

OPINION

Letters to the Editor

Help those losing their trees

At the September 3rd city council meeting, the agenda item taking the most time was the "adverse effects of the big area sewer line as it would also fill the long ditch along Sycamore Lane, etc., mainly the toll project would take out many older trees, many of those over 100 years old." This was not made clear at the outset, although many must have known the project would consume some of their backyards.

As our city attorney pointed out, the reduced-size lots with existing homes would result in having the effect of overbuilt (size-wise) homes on the smaller lots; thus, no space for future home expansion. But since an effort will be made to deal with all such affected homes as a group, this would be the time for the affected homeowners to make a list of last-minute repairs/updates they would like, especially if their laundry facilities are adversely affected. And since it will take many years for replacement trees to equal the shade protection of existing trees, it seems like those folks deserve a "carpet/patio cover" in their backyards where it would provide the best heat protection during the hottest days.

McClintock for governor

As a prominent and very active Democrat for the past forty years, I was distraught when Jimmy Carter and the Democratic House and Senate gave our Panama Canal to Panama. We bought and paid for it with our money, sweat, blood, lives, and American ingenuity. We had legal title to it and we earned it and owned it.

Now my party is planting a Trojan horse in Sacramento. Cruz Bustamante was an active party member of MECHA, a group dedicated to Mexico taking back California and the other six southwestern states they lost in the Mexican-American War. Does anyone think that our next potential governor has changed his mind?

To protect and perpetuate California, I am voting for the most knowledgeable, capable and honorable Tom McClintock.

ROBERT A. FELBURG

I'M HAPPY TO HEAR THAT OUR FEAR OF INTRUSIVE GOVERNMENT SPYING IS ALL MISINFORMATION! THANK YOU. JOHN ASHCROFT!
YOU'RE WELCOME!

CRITIC'S CORNER
By DNA Smith

Although I'm not a huge fan of slasher movies, when I saw the trailer for "Freddy Vs. Jason," I was psyched. This is the kind of Big, Dumb Hoo-Hah popcorn flick that has all the potential of being a flat-out Guilty Pleasure, I thought.

And I was right.

Pairing the hockey-masked, machete-wielding maniac Jason (Ken Kirzinger) from the "Friday the 13th" series against Freddy Krueger (Robert Englund) from the "Nightmare on Elm Street" franchise is pure genius. Add Hong Kong director Ronny "Bride of Chucky" Yu to the mix, and the result is a heady dose of sick laughs and creative mayhem.

The film finds Freddy oh-so-forlorn because the teenagers on Elm Street have forgotten about him. So, he takes a road trip to Hell to find Jason. He releases Jason on Elm Street, hoping that the gruesome murders will get the kids talking about Freddy, so they can have nightmares about him where he can infiltrate those dreams and perform his own form of mayhem.

And the teens are everything you hope for in a flick like this: The chicks are all buxom and stupid. The dudes are all buff. And Stupid. And dropping like flies after they've been pureed by a machete.

But the best laid plans of Mice and Psychopaths often gang a'glee, as the poet wrote; and Jason does such a good job racking up the body count,

Of course, you know ... This means War.

So Freddy and Jason duke it out in some of the coolest fight scenes found in either franchise. And if you're waiting for me to reveal who the winner is, I'll tell you in two words: The Audience.

Now if they can only get that Alien Vs. Predator movie off the ground.

TUNING IN by Sally Stone

A Conversation with Mark Harmon

On Sept. 23, CBS will premiere "Navy NCIS" (NCIS stands for Naval Criminal Investigative Service). The new series is a spin-off from CBS' "JAG," which focuses on the legal branch of the United States Navy and Marine Corps and is entirely a military operation. NCIS is made up of special agents who investigate any crimes that might be even remotely connected to Navy and Marine Corps personnel, regardless of rank. They are civilians, not answerable to the military chain of command. (As David McCallum, one of the stars, put it: They are intimately involved with the military, but not married to it.) Along with McCallum ("Sex and the City"), who plays Dr. Donald (Ducky) Mallard, a medical examiner who is never fazed by what he sees because he's seen it all before, the series also stars Sasha Alexander ("Dawson's Creek"), Michael Weatherly ("Dark Angel") and Mark Harmon ("Chicago Hope," "The West Wing" and the recently released feature "Freaky Friday") as the team leader, Special Agent Leroy Jethro Gibbs.

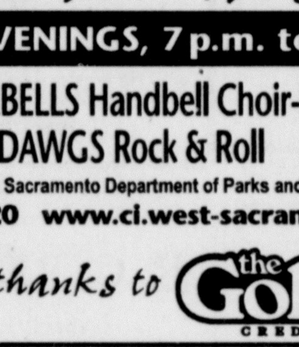
Mark Harmon says what he especially likes about his "Navy NCIS" character is the fact that Gibbs looks at his job as more than just solving crimes and catching criminals.

"He sees himself as being in a struggle between the forces of good and the forces of evil. And he's determined that the bad guys are not going to win on his watch. With people like Gibbs on our side," Harmon says, "you get the feeling that maybe we've got a real chance of defeating those dark forces once and for all."

Harmon admits he was as surprised as most people to learn that there really is such an entity as NCIS.

"You assume that if a crime occurs that involves the Navy or the Marine Corps, that it's going to be handled by the military authorities," he says. "But the people who make up this special group of investigators not only have the skills needed to do the work, but they're also free to operate without any pressure from anyone along the Naval chain of command.

"And as I said, while most people had no idea (the NCIS) existed, the fact is they're everywhere. Whenever something happens that might even remotely involve American Naval or Marine personnel anywhere in the world, a team will be there before any other group shows up."



"Navy NCIS"
CBS • Tuesdays

(NOTE: Besides "Freaky Friday" currently in release, Mark Harmon has wrapped a movie for 2004 distribution that is referred to in the trade papers as "The Mandy Moore Project." And while he plays the President of the United States in the new flick, he apparently doesn't plan to allow his character to inspire him to follow the ever-lengthening procession of actors who have moved into the realm of politics over recent years.)

In Focus

The Emmy Awards ceremony this year will be broadcast Sunday, Sept. 21, on the Fox Network. Two nominees could make this event a real family affair if they each win in their respective categories. They're Jane Kaczmarek of "Malcolm in the Middle," who is nominated for Lead Actress, and her husband, Bradley Whitford, who gets the Supporting Actor bid for playing Josh Lyman on "The West Wing."

Melissa George, whose last series was "Thieves" with John Stamos, has joined the cast of "Alias," playing Vaughn's (Michael Vartan) mysterious new wife. The show returns to the air on Sept. 28 with an episode that explains what happened while Sydney (Jennifer Garner) was "gone" for two years. George's character will make her first appearance a week later on Oct. 5.

returns to acting this season in "24," playing a technical specialist named Nicole Duncan who faces the daunting challenge of stopping an ominous terrorist attack. "24" premieres Oct. 28 this year; Thompson's first airdate is Nov. 11.

End Note: It's rumored that an American and British production company have teamed to produce a film about the suicide of Dr. David Kelly, the British scientist who reportedly felt pressured to agree that there were weapons of mass destruction in Iraq, although he never found any.

VEGETABLE RECIPES ON THE CUTTING EDGE

Are you and the family getting the recommended daily servings of veggies? Fed up with putting away the leftovers dad and the kids turned down? Maybe you should try new ways.

Instead of simply boiling or steaming vegetables, then slapping on butter or oil, mix a colorful variety and sauté them in good olive oil, or roast or grill them. Flavor is intensified, sometimes sweetened by their natural sugars. Try new seasonings. Change the shape of the cuts and slices. Now, I know this means a bit more time, but the dividend in nutrients is worth it.

A little advice: Be sure knives are sharp so they can do their job quickly, safely and efficiently. And use a French chef's knife, says Chef Fritz Sonnenschmidt, a member of the Cutco Cutlery Corp.'s advisory board and the National Chair of The American Academy of Chefs.

The French Chef's knife will slice, dice, julienne, chop, shred, flatten and pick up foods. "This," says Sonnenschmidt, "is a basic knife to use for a sense of feel before learning to use other knives. It is an extension of your hand; you should respect it as you would respect yourself."

Try these recipes, adding other veggies, if you like. Some vegetables lend themselves nicely to diagonal slicing. And make chunky cuts rather than a mishmash of tiny pieces.

VEGETABLE MEDLEY

- 2 tablespoons olive oil
- 1 medium red onion, halved, sliced lengthwise
- 1/2 pound green beans, cut in 2-inch pieces
- 1 zucchini, halved lengthwise and cut in 1/2 inch slices
- 1 yellow squash, halved lengthwise, cut in 1/2 inch slices
- 1 clove garlic, crushed
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- 2 medium tomatoes, each cut in 8 wedges
- 1 tablespoon chopped fresh Italian parsley

In 12-inch skillet over medium heat, heat oil; cook onion 3 minutes. Add green beans, zucchini, yellow squash, garlic and salt. Cook about 8 minutes longer, stirring frequently. Add tomato and parsley; cook 3 minutes longer or until vegetables are tender. Makes 4 to 6 servings.

SUN-DRIED TOMATO DIP WITH GRILLED VEGETABLES

- 1 cup French's Gourmayo Sun-Dried Tomato Mayonnaise
- 1/2 cup sour cream or plain nonfat yogurt
- 2 tablespoons minced scallion
- 2 teaspoons minced fresh dill or parsley
- 1 teaspoon finely minced garlic

Combine all ingredients. Chill until ready to use. Serve with grilled vegetables. (Recipe follows.) Makes 1 1/2 cups.

GRILLED VEGETABLES

Olive oil
Coarse salt
Fresh ground black pepper
Red, yellow and green bell peppers cut in 1 1/2- to 2-inch strips
Baby eggplant, cut in 1/2-inch slices
Sweet onions, cut in 1/2-inch round slices
Zucchini, cut in 1/4-inch slices
Portobello mushrooms, stems removed

Brush vegetables with oil; season with salt and black pepper. Grill over medium-high heat until tender and slightly charred, turning often. Baste with oil as needed. Arrange vegetables on lettuce-lined platter.

Zucchini Rules!

Zucchini happens to be one of those vegetables that gets far too little respect. I think it might be because its vines are so proficient. No matter how good something is, when it's overabundant, it somehow is taken for granted. Try this ultra-easy relish, and others just might ask you, "Where in the world did you come up with this great recipe?"

ITALIAN VEGETABLE RELISH

- 1 1/2 cups finely chopped unpeeled zucchini
- 1 cup shredded carrots
- 1/4 cup finely chopped green and/or red bell pepper
- 1/4 cup finely chopped onion
- 1/2 cup fat-free Italian dressing

In a medium bowl, combine zucchini, carrots, pepper and onion. Add Italian dressing. Mix gently to combine. Cover and refrigerate for at least 1 hour. Gently stir again just before serving. Makes 6 (1/2 cup) servings.

• Each serving equals: 28 calories, 0 g fat, 1 g protein, 6 g carb., 231 mg sodium, 2 g fiber; Diabetic Exchanges: 1 Vegetable.

Last Tuesday J. McCarthy had the misfortune to sink his houseboat when he overloaded it with provisions bought for a winter's supply. With the extra load the boat sank several inches and at a weak spot in the hull water seeped in. Mrs. McCarthy noticed there was something wrong and investigated. To her dismay she found the boat just about to go down and made her escape. Yesterday several friends unloaded the winter's provisions and baled out the excess water so that the boat floated again with little or no damage to the contents.

Mrs. Belle Austin is down from Chico to spend several weeks or perhaps to remain during the balance of the winter.

The home of Al Shoemaker was quarantined last Wednesday by Henry Leinberger, local Heatlh Officer, because of the illness of Shoemaker's daughter, Lucille, with diphtheiria. It is said that a number of the playmates of the child are also absent from school because of illness. In order to prevent the disease from spreading, A. L. Case, Principal of the school, made an investigation into the causes of the absence of pupils.

At a meeting of the Parent-Teacher Association last Wednesday the time of the meetings was changed from afternoon to evening. At the next regular meeting, November 18, an interesting program will be given, including the "Firefly Dance," by a number of children of the Washington School.

The Fire Commissioners report that the masquerade ball to be given on the evening of November 20th promises some surprises in the way of costumes because some valuable prizes have prompted a good deal of preparation on the part of those who intend to take part. GYPSIES HARD TO MOVE BUT CONSTABLE BUCKINGHAM DETERMINED

Near the M-stret bridge, on land owned by the West Sacramento Co., a great band of gypsies is camped together with several other travelers who are making their way across country.

The camp is so large and there are so many inhabitants that there is danger to health because sanitary precautions have not been taken.

There are no toilets in the vicinity and drinking water must be taken from the river at a point close to the bank or else a visit must be made to Sacramento hydrants or yard hydrants on Margaret street.

In addition residents in the neighborhood are pestered a good deal by the habits of the gypsies in purloining any useful articles they may come across.

This piece of land is rented by the West Sacramento Co. to Mabel Ross and she sublets to campers. So long as the campers pay, no matter how small an amount, Constable Buckingham cannot order them to move.

He has arrived at a conclusion, however, that he thinks will effectively force the gypsies to move. This is how he proposes to do it.

Every camp has several or many children. If he finds these children under age and not at school he will have them taken before the Probation Officer and in this manner he believes he will thin out the population on this vacant lot.

There are several worthy families who are journeying around the country in search of health, recreation or work also in camp there. These usually stay only a short time and are careful to bury offal and refuge and are not so objectionable.

The population of the lot at this writing is too large for any worthy purpose.

DREDGER "ATLAS" IS DIGGING ANOTHER SAND PILE IN RIVER

Close to the mouth of the American River and between it and the Pioneer mill the dredger Atlas is digging a channel in the river for navigation and as usual is depositing the sand in a little pile on the right side of the stream, that is on the Yolo side.

Last summer during very low water a dredger was used to dig a channel for navigation that extended nearly across the river, but which diverted the current all to the Sacramento shore.

Following the first rain the pile of sand dug up at that time was leveled so that no sign of it remained a week ago.

Now the dredger Atlas is digging in a different place because of the mistake made last summer and as usual the pile will be reduced by the next freshet.

This work it seems to be so silly that it has been compared to the efforts of little children on the seashore with their buckets and little shovels building fences and tunnels and mountains.

If the sand were only pumped out of the river bed to build stronger levees or to be used as filling for low places there would be some sense to the work, but as it is being now done it seems an absolute waste of time and funds.

Dredgers cannot be hired for less than $150 a day and a few days' work runs up a mighty strong bill.

Were a suction dredger used it would pump the sand onto weak places on the levee where two birds would be killed with one stone.

LEINBERGER HAS BEEN RECEIVING BOUQUETS FOLLOWING ELECTION

Between friends and jokers Supervisor Leinberger has been having a jolly time since November 2d.

At the election on that date he had no opponent and received a unanimous vote in his district.

Friends, of course, were anxious to see his election and congratulations have been coming to him thick and fast from them.

W. J. LEINBERGER

Jokers have been busy also, and now since he is the only Democrat elected in California, the jokes have been of the practical kind.

The other day the following was received by him from Woodland:

"Congratulations, Bill! So far as we have been able to learn you are the only Democrat in the United States to survive the landslide. We have heard from a fellow who had a wire from a cousin who knew a politician who told him that a Democratic Constable back in the hills somewhere in Kentucky was elected, but, like you, he had no opposition."

During four years past Leinberger has been extremely active in looking after the interests of this district. Of his time he gave generously to the service of the county and he accomplished much in the way of improvements.

It was for these reasons that he had no opposition at the primary election and none at the final on November 2d.

The complexion of the Board of Supervisors of Yolo County after January 1st will be Republican, thus permitting a big switch in the line of patronage when the board is reorganized.

It will be interesting to note the changes in the various county officials soon after the first of the year.

Homeland Security Dept. gives W.S. Fire Dept. $107,000 grant

Congressman Mike Thompson announced last week that the West Sacramento Fire Department will receive $107,334 from the federal 2003 "Assistance to Firefighters" grant program. The program, administered by the Department of Homeland Security, seeks to provide fire departments with resources necessary for the safety of firefighters and the public.

The city's fire department will use the money to buy two new thermal imaging devices and 12 portable radios. The thermal imaging devices will be used to detect confined heat or the presence of humans trapped within a structure, and the radios are intended to improve firefighters' communication.

The program will administer $750 million in grants this year nationwide to firefighters.

A Faith Journey

All of us have a natural desire to belong to an intimate community where acceptance, security, and healing can be felt and celebrated as nowhere else. Most of us know that growing in spiritual insight and maturity is both challenging and reassuring. As we search together, we need the comforting stories of those who have journeyed successfully before us. At the same time we look for spiritual support and friendship from companions along the way. The Catholic Church supports and encourages spiritual journeys within the context of scripture, Church teaching and practice. Please come and join us for a year of inquiry and questions.

I-80 bridge honors workers

The I-80 bridge across the Sacramento River dividing Yolo County from Sacramento County was officially renamed the "Caltrans Maintenance Worker Memorial Bridge" last week, to honor Caltrans workers killed while working on the state's highways.

Caltrans is also about to begin an $8 million project to reinforce and re-pave the bridge, which the agency says supports 73,000 vehicles per day.

Because of the length of the new name, traffic reporters and others are being encouraged by Caltrans to refer to it more simply as the "Caltrans Memorial Bridge."
